: COMMON O R D E R:

During the pendency of these cases, both parties entered into compromise and a deed of compromise has been filed into court. All the parties to the proceedings have signed in the compromise deed and both the learned counsel also signed and they represented that the parties have voluntarily entered into compromise and the revision petitions and writ petition may be disposed of in terms of compromise.

Compromise is recorded. In the circumstances, the writ petition is closed in terms of compromise. No costs.

In view of the compromise between the parties and closing of writ petition, the revision petitions have become infructuous. Hence the revision petitions are dismissed as having become infructuous. No order as to costs.
